ROARING BRANCH CABINS

ROARING BRANCH CABINS

Celebrating 100 Years

In 1912, Henry Shaw purchased 36 acres of Vermont woodland and began building authentic log cabins and by 1913 he had established Roaring Branch Camps as a rustic vacation retreat. Today, one-hundred years later, this small community of log cabins still maintains the spirit Henry Shaw envisioned. A handful of cozy log cabins nestle in the white pine forest overlooking the rushing mountain stream that borders this peaceful resort.

Now known as Roaring Branch Cabins, this tranquil oasis appeals to those who like the smell of pines, the sound of a stream, the casual informality of a hike in the woods, a game of tennis followed by a swim in the clear water of the stream, and then a peaceful night beside a roaring fire in the cabin's fireplace.

All of this is within minutes of fly fishing, kayaking canoeing, horseback riding, skiing, restaurants, outlet shopping, museums, theater and so much more. And it is a mere three to four hours from New York and Boston!

Burr. Each includes two bedrooms and a loft area that sleeps two, so that cabins comfortably accommodate six.

All cabins also have living rooms with vaulted ceilings and stone fireplaces, fully-equipped modern kitchens, dining areas, and one-and-a-half to two bathrooms. Cabins are well spaced throughout the tall pines and winding paths that ensure the privacy of your vacation.

Spending time on the covered porch with a view and sound of the stream below is as relaxing as can be. And while you are doing that, the kids can head over to the swings, the badminton or composition tennis courts, the basketball area, tetherball, horseshoes or ping pong pavilion.

Each cabin is known by its name, such as Owl's Nest, Partridge, Woodchuck, Rabbit Warren, and Chestnut

Or head down the steps to the stream to fish, explore or cool off. On a rainy day, there is a little log library and game cabin to snuggle into.

This unique place offers all -season old-fashioned vacation fun in the most quiet, restful setting you can imagine. Roaring Branch can offer a magical respite from the everyday stress of life for couples, and the single traveler as well.

Cabins rent by the week during the summer, or for three days or more during the winter.

Where the Vermont of your dreams awaits you.
